Harry--

Would you and Meghan be available for tea on Tuesday at the castle? Your grandfather and I would love to see baby Archie again.

Let my event secretary know if you are free.

Regards,
Gran

Dear Gran,

Thanks for the invitation! We'd love to see you and Gramps on Tuesday. I'll bring the gin.

In the meantime, attached is a new picture of Archie that Meghan took the other day. He was smiling!

See you Tuesday,
Harry

Reply, Reply All, or Forward is highlighted depending on the response from the Inbox to a received email.

The "To" is auto-completed based on the received email's sender, as is the subject. The original email is automatically listed below the open text response field.

There is space for any attachments if included. Attachments are attached by clicking the "Attachment" button and choosing the appropriate local file.

The "To:", "Cc:", and "Bcc:" buttons give the user the ability to use their Contact Lists to fill in the appropriate text field, or the user can manually type the information as well. The Subject line is also editable.

Cancel | Save as Draft | Send Now

When "Send Now" is chosen, the user is given one last chance to ensure that they want to either cancel the CTA, Save the email as a draft, or continue with sending now.

If "Cancel" is chosen, the CTA is abandoned and the user is still in edit mode.

Secure and Send Pop-up:

Once the confirmation "Send Now" is chosen, this animated pop-up appears to show the progress of sending:

- The catapult appears as soon as the "Send Now" is chosen.
- When the email goes through the backend security, the Knight icon appears.
- Once the security is completed, the castle appears and indicates that it's sent.

Save as Draft Pop-Up:

Create New Email

To Create a New Email (that's not a reply or forwarding of an already received message), the user would choose the "Create Email" tab at the top navigation.

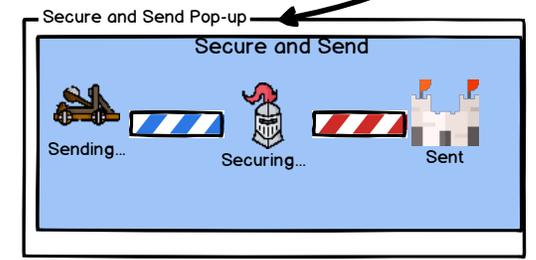

Once that window has opened, the "Create New Email" icon confirms that the user is creating something new that's not a response.

The rest of the functionality is essentially the same as the
